Course Description

In this course, you will demonstrate your ability to undertake lifelong self-directed learning by designing and executing an experiential learning project. Your learning endeavor involves identifying a topic of interest, establishing measurable outcomes, employing multiple learning strategies and reflecting on the learning methods used. A final product and class presentation comprise the chief deliverables.

This course will examine the broad issue of homelessness by providing students the opportunity to reflect upon stories narrated by people experiencing homelessness and to reflect upon a range of sustained efforts to address homelessness. Students will explore what can be learned about themselves as reflective practitioners, service learners, and spiritual human beings when reflecting upon this experiential learning process.

Learning Outcomes

After completing this course, you will be able to:

- Define reflection and explain why reflection is important in personal and societal contexts.
- Analyze homelessness with a systemic change analysis.
- Analyze researched factors contributing to homelessness in light of service-learning experience.
- Identify current local, state, or federal legislation/policy that addresses homelessness.
- Analyze individual and societal responsibilities in addressing homelessness.

Learning Outcomes for SNC 186: Liberal Studies Program -Experiential Learning Domain

- Apply particular concepts from readings, lectures, etc. to an analysis of lived experiences in the settings provided by the course.
- Use the experiences provided by the course to construct and articulate the impact of their experience on their understanding of course content.
- Analyze the ethics appropriate to his or her experiential placement.
- Use their new understanding to make decisions and solve problems related to the course, whether at the setting provided by the course, or in other assignments.

Learning Strategies and Resources

Through the class discussions, assigned readings, invited speakers, and journal assignments, students will reflect on their own beliefs and perceptions of homelessness and analyze the history, causes, and policy associated with this societal problem.

Service Learning Experience: Through digital media, students will reflect upon stories narrated by people experiencing homelessness and sustained efforts to address homelessness.

Guest Lecturers: Speakers dedicated to addressing the problem of homelessness at the community, government, or university level - normally invited to present their work and participate in class reflection and discussion during on ground coursework - will be integrated into digital media engagement with people and organizations addressing homelessness.

Required Readings

Books and learning materials are available at the DePaul bookstore, at <http://depaul-loop.bncollege.com>, or through alternative sources.

There are readings that will be assigned on a weekly basis. Students are expected to read the assigned portions.

Readings will be available on Electronic Reserve, at the DePaul Library. Login to Ares Course Reserves and select the course. Log in using your Campus Connect User ID and password. You will then get a page listing the courses in which you're enrolled that have readings posted in Ares. Click on the title of this course and the list of our electronic reserve readings will be displayed.

Learning Deliverables

Written Journal: Students will be required to complete a bi-weekly journal describing your perceptions, feelings, and ideas about your experiential learning process.

Critical Reflection Paper: 6 pages due at the end of the quarter. The paper will respond to an assigned question and follow guidelines that will be posted on D2L during Week 5. The paper will be an exercise of critical reflection upon the student's experiential learning, readings, class discussions, research, and journal work.

Class Presentation: 4-6 minute class presentation that can be made alone or in collaboration with another class member based on your critical reflection paper. Creativity is highly encouraged!
